16. Senora. from Pico House. 147

El Pueblo de Los Angeles, outlined in red, lies close to the heart of downtown Los Angeles and the Civic Center, a Central District served on a frequent and continuous basis by a fleet of low-fare mini-busses.

*Boundaries don't match USGS

While the Biscailuz Building (1) is not essentially historic, it houses the Mexican Consulate and has over one million visitors annually. Its architecture is compatible with the area. The parking lot (2) is owned by the City and is shortly to be replaced by an outdoor assembly cultural area which will honor historic figures such as the Pobladores (original settlers) of Los Angeles.
